Flewin was found guilty by a jury of manslaughter in the killing of Russell Streeter, 21, outside the Colony Motor Inn on Douglas. He originally had been charged with non-capital murder.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan said the slaying was a "sense-less, vicious act" of a type "only too common in modern society." He said a stiff sentence was needed as a deterrent to protect society at large.

Defence lawyer Robert Price told court in a pre-sentence submission that Flewin had "over-reacted"in a con-frontation with Streeter over

He suggested a short sentence and a program of psychiatric help for the accused.

Mr. Justice Ruttan agreed that psychiatric help was needed over a long period, and said he hoped Flewin would get that treatment in

The judge said he was con sidering in passing sentence that the accused "committed the act deliberately, but did not intend to kill."

Flewin, a short, dark man with shoulder-length hair,was 20 years old when he stabbed Streeter to death on the hotel parking lot after what police reports show was a wild, bot-tle-throwing scene in which neither of the principals was Chief weather officer Allan McQuarrie promises "reasonable wind" for the start, scheduled for 9:30 a.m. and 9:45 a.m. Saturday off Brotchie Ledge. The big "if" is what direction it will blow - east or west?

McQuarrie says there will be a switch to the west sometime that day — but when?

The start is expected to be under cloudy skies but by the time the armade salls in from Race Rocks on the last stretch home Sunday, the westerlies are expected to bring them back under colorful splanakers to the finish line.

Officials at the Royal Viotoria Yacht Club worked late Wednesday compiling lists of the largest Swiftsure on record. A total of 213 boats will compete in the two races.

The club will be well represented in both classics, with several boats taking on the annual testing for the first time. Making their first try at Swiftsure will be Bob Horner's 47-foot sloop Pandora, Bill Tellier's 50-foot cutter West by North, and Bob Hosie's 34-foot sloop Triad.

Today, past of the Swiftsure fleet began tying up in the Inner Harbor. By the time pre-Swiftsure festivities start Friday evening the harbor's inner reaches will be a forest of spars.

Getting things off to a musical start, Herman Bergink will play a Pre-Roll Call program on the Netherlands Carillon from 7.15 to 7.45 p.m. The roll call ceremony will be performed abound the Bay's replica of the Nonsuch. The Rainbow Royal Canadian See Cades Carps will carry out a Sunset Ceremony on the lawns of the legislative buildings.

75.6-mile classics, volunteers will man an information centre a Royal Vlo, keeping a plot of the boats' positions. The phone number is 592-2441.

Beliveau Still a Star In Baby-Cuddling Role

It may seem a pity to some what the passing months have done to Jean Beliveau, hockey superstar, but don't dare try to tell that story to over 100 Victoria mothers, and their offspring.

Instead of playing centre ice for Montreal Canadiens, Beliveau has taken to coddling babies. And it he was nearly always an atl-star in his 20-year career with the Canadiens, he's still a success. On Wednesday he was an instant off at the Hill-side Shopping Mail in the Victorian Daya' version of the Disper Derby.

Debonair, suave, and "positively handsome" (as one minislivred mother remarked) in his two-button, grey pin stripe, Beliveau wowed 'em at the Mall in his official capacity as a indge for the Chamber of Commerce baby contest.

There were small babies, large babies, boy babies and girl babies; babies in buggles, and babies in shopping carts; and if you couldn't tell a baby without a mother, the mothers were all numbered. Even father. One dad (No. 1) carried his toddler in a back-pack.

This was the first stop in a long day for Beliveau, here as a representative of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, and big Jean smiled through it all. And no it wasn't a chore:

"I've been doing it all my life," he laughed.

"It's been a long time since I handled one of my own," he added, as he posed, holding one baby, for a photographer. His only daughter is 15.

'There Are Better and Younger'

And that was the theme, autograph seekers everywhere, hucksters selling wall banners featuring Beliveau in action, and in toll color for $1.50; and press, commercial and plain ordinary camera fiends snapping away at will. One mother even forgot her place, bless her, and posed with Beliveau, WITHOUT her baby!

In between pictures, Beliveau revealed that:

of the Russians, he added significantly: I have seen them play only twice, but I know this. The Canadians had better be in shape. The Russians will be. All European teams are in better general condition than we are."

Coaching! "No, that's the same routine, the same schedule, as playing," he said. "And that's one reason I retired when I did. "I wanted to be closer to my family.

Quebec Offered Him Post in WHA

If Beliveau has never actually been offered an NHL coaching position, "It's because when I retired I said I didn't want one." But the World Hockey Association wouldn't take that as final." The Quebec team offered me the general manager's job," he said.
"I turned it down, " he said. "After all I am still with the Finally he did say: "some of the players didn't play as well

He didn't mention that the Habs also had two players missing from the previous season when they won the Cup. One was John Ferguson. The other Jean Beliveau.

Bobby Marsh should have known it would be a bizarre evening when Wayne Spooner telephoned him at 5 p.m. Wednesday

Marsh and the Coquitlam Adanacs were just 30 minutes away from flying out of Vancouver for their Western Lacrosee Association game with Victoria. Shamrocks when Spooner called and asked to

The Coquitiam coach jumped at the opportunity. Without any prior contact with Marsh and the Adanacs, the 25-year-old Spooner made the flight and suited up for the game. the game.

HELPED A LOT

Spooner not only played but he scored three times, includ-ing the winning goal with 31 seconds to play, and set up two others as the Adanacs edged Shamrocks 19-18 before 1,580 fans at Memorial Arena.

The victory left the Adanacs and Shamrocks deadlocked in a third-place tie.

Spooner's return to a Coquitlam uniform, after toiling last year and the first seven games this season with New Westminster, was certainly no stranger than the game itself.

Adanacs found themselved down 9-2 after the first period and it looked like another long night for Marsh's troops, who have been weakened by the loss of six regulars from last season's club.

But the replacements started to come through and Adanacs caught fire with 10 straight goals to grab a 13-12 lead after 40 minutes.

LATE COMERS HELP

Jim Rickbeil, who was in Prince George at the start of the season, fired four goals. Brian Bergum, a late Vancouver cut, popped in three. Both scored key goals late in the third period and Rickbeil's final tally knotted the game at 18-18 with one minute to play.

"I'd have to say he (Spooner) will fit in somewhere along the line," joked Marsh after saying his surprise starter will remain with

"I'm a left-handed shot and Salmonbellies have plenty of them," said Spooner later. I want to go where I can play regularly." He said he had regularly." He said he had not signed a contract with New Westminster.

Spooner, a regular with Coquitlam for two years before going on to New Westminster, hasn't had this much attention since an unfortunate hockey incident last year.

FIVE-YEAR RAP

After playing several sea-sons with Nashville of the Eastern League, Spooner was handed a five-year suspension after a run-in with a referee last season in the mainland's Vestern Amateur League.

All three scoring heroes weren't with Coquitiam at the start of the season and their punch, along with the return of high-scoring Wayne Shutt-leworth and Les Schumacher, should provide the Adanacs with another prolific nucleus.

Marsh reported that Schu-macher will play against Victoria Saturday in Coquitlam and Shuttleworth, defending WLA scoring champion, will end his retirement within two Coquitlam's second-period surge indicated the nucleus is in the making.

Irish domination ceased in the second and, for the first half of the period, the Adanaes made a mockery of the Irish defence and goaltenders. Carl Morton's experi-mentation resulted in exasperation for the Philadelphia Phils Wednesday night.

Morton, the National League's rookie of the year two seasons ago, had been having his difficulties getting untracked this season. He began experimenting with a new pitch — a sinker ball — and decided to put it into use Wednesday.

The result was a one-hitter for the red-haired Montreal righthander as the Expos beat Philadelphia 4-1 and ran the Phils' losing streak to nine The lone Philadelphia hit was a third-inning triple by rookie Mike Anderson that barely eluded right fielder Clyde Mashore's diving effort. Anderson scored on Denny Doyle's sacrifice fly.

"The ball wasn't even in the strike zone," said Morton, who is now 2-4. "I'm really surprised he hit it. It was 2-0 and it should have been 3-0. It

The fact that some of these accords really were prenego-tiated and reserved for formal announcement here does not appear to be causing any of-ficial discomfort for either

On the contrary, American and Soviet diplomats contend it is more important to their long-range purposes to demonstrate that the two superpowers can deliver on preplamed diplomatic expectations than to gamble on dramatic successes or failures,

This posture, however, is not foreelosing speculation that Nixon and Brezhnev are still attempting in private to produce some additional surprise accord to further dramatize their ability to agree.

What the two government leaders are counting on most to demonstrate success here is the cumulative affect of accords in multiple form. Some cords in multiple form. Some of these pacts, such as the science and technology compact announced Wednesday, could just as readily have been accomplished by broadening existing agreements. Although no official will say

'... I May Die In One Second...

HUE, South Vietnam (AP).— "The shelling is terrible; I will die here," a North Vietnamese soldier wrote in his diary. An artillery barrage proved him right.

The diary, which South Vietnamese officers said was found on a body just north of My Chanh, 20 miles above this threatened key northern city, read:

"... Enemy shells continue for more than four hours:
There isn't a minute they don't come in. So many shells make you run from your foxhole...like a thousand waves splashing the shore..."

Translators said the passage, written in poetic, abbreviated Vietnamese, carried a notation asking the finder to deliver it to Nguyen Dinh Que, a Hanoi civil servant; the soldier's brother.

The soldier, who was not named, wrote that he entered the army seven months ago, leaving Hanoi before the Tet (lunar new year) and crossing into South Vietnam on May 2 along the Ho Chi Minh trail "I die for either the glory of my country or the humili-ation of my people...so that my fellow soldiers will gain victory...or so that my blood will stain the red flag in the imperial city of Hue."

The arts centre picture cloely resembled a picture taken at a Wallace rally May 13 in Kalamazoo, Mich. In both pictures, the man is wearing glasses with dark rims on top and clear rims on the bottom.

The sources said subsequent investigation, after discovery of the photographs, revealed that Bremer had stayed at the Lord Eigin Hotel in downtown Ottawa during the visit. They said border points were being checked to see how he entered the country.

New York state police last week said that Bremer had been given a speeding ticket near Binghamton on the eve-ning of April 15. Bremer was pped in a southbound lane Interstate 81 at a point about a three-hour drive from the Canadian border.

Mao Once Wanted to Pattern China on U.S. Model

WASHINGTON (WUP) — Chinese Com-munist Party chairman Mao Tve-tung said in early 1946 that he preferred to visit Ameri-ean rather than the Soviet Union because he could "seara lots of things useful to China"

Chou En-lai, now Chinese premier, also claimed at the time that the Communists sought to introduce U.S. style "democracy" and "free enterprise" to China during the short term, even though their "ultimate goal" was the creation of a Socialist state.

State department documents officially made public for the first time this week disclose that these assertions were communicated by the Chinese leaders to Gen. George Marshall, then in China trying to mediate between the Communists and Chiang Kaishek's rival nationalists.

According to the documents, Marshall passed on the Communists' remarks to President Truman in a telegram sent on Feb. 1, 1946. Marshall, then Mr. Truman's "special representative," held the rank of ambassador.

The documents, contained in two volumes totalling passive 2000 pages underlied and are all the contents of the comments.

totalling nearly 3,000 pages, underline as well the durability of the senior Communist Chi-nese officials who have been dealing with the U.S. over the years.

Among those cited are Yeh Chien-ying and Chang Wenchin, who were then Chou's aides and would 26 years later, participate in a summit meeting between the Premier and President Nixon

Yeh is now an army marshal while Chang, who had been educated at the Ameri-can-financed Yenching university in Peking, was recently made a foreign ministry assistant, a rank just below that of deputy foreign

Another figure mentioned frequently in the 1946 documents is Solomon Adler, then a U.S. treasury representative in China. Adler afterward defected to the Communists and has lived in Peking for most of the period since then.

The compilation of formerly confidential telegrams, memoranda and other papers dramatizes Marshall's frustrations as he un-dramatizes Marshall's frustrations as he unsuccessfully attempted during that year to prevent renewed outbreaks of hostilities between the Communists and Nationalists.

Early in the negotiations, however, Chou told Marshall that Mao regarded his efforts to eament a truce in China as "fair and just," and added that the Communists were "prepared to co-operate with the U.S. in matters both of a local and national character."

Chou, who had just seen Mao at the Communist base at Yanan, referred to rumors that the party leader was planning to visit Moscow.

Chou told Marshall in a conversation on Jan. 31, 1946, that Mao had laughed at these rumors but remarked "half-jokingly" that he might consider a U.S. visit.

According to Chou, Mao said that "if ever he would take a furlough abroad, which would certainly do much good to his present health condition, he would rather go to the United States, because he thinks that there he can learn lots of things useful to China."

In the same conversation Chou told Man.

In the same conversation, Chou told Mar-shall that "the democrocy to be initiated in China should follow the American pattern."

Chou added: "Since in present-day China, the conditions necessary to the introduction of Socialism do not exist, we Chinese Communists, who theoretically advocate Socialism as our ultimate goal, do not mean nor deem it possible, to carry it into effect in the immediate future.

"In saying that we should pursue the American path, we mean to acquire U.S. styled democracy and science, and specifically to introduce to this country agricultural reform, industrialization, free enterprise and development of individuality, so that we may build up an independent, free and prosperous China."

Earlier State Department documents have disclosed that Mao told John Service, the U.S. representative in Yenan, that he considered the United States the 'most suitable country' to aid China in the period after the Second World War.

Second World War.

Service's document, which was released last year, quoted Mao as saying that "there must not and cannot be any comflict, estrangement or misunderstanding between the Chinese people and America,"

Relations between the U.S. and the Communists deteriorated during the late 1940s, however. On his first trip abroad, in 1950, Mao went to the Soviet Union.

A New Phenomenon

The crowning jewel of Mr. Nixon's talks with Kremlin leaders will be, of course, the pact to limit missile armaments. Beside this, the agreement for a joint space operation in 1975 and the pending agreements to expand trade between the two countries are important but not crucial. Welcome also are the joint environmental and medical programs, long in preparation. But from the hints emanating from the highly secret discussions over the past few days, the layman might ask just what real progress the expected limitation of strategic arms will accomplish. The concessions seem minimal.

According to reports, the arms pact will limit to two sites in each country the deployment of defensive missiles - meaning in particular the ABMs. Missile sites on land,

There is a possibility that satellites will be used to superintend adherence to the pact. The items, of course, are not official.

Compared with the past all-out armaments race, however, these features represent real progress, and nearly three years have passed in almost desperate bargaining in order to reach this point. But the nuclear danger to the world can hardly be said to be reduced by these provisions: there will still be sufficient missiles to wipe out both countries, perhaps several times over. We may not be sliding toward the brink so rapidly, but we are not yet retreating

That is not to discount the achievement at Moscow which should be culminated in the next day or two. The mere fact of the visit, of the apparently amicable talks, of the reality of agreement if only on bare essentials, augurs well for the future. These are heartening realities. Joint space plans, the possible increase in trade, and the other common efforts, should do much to help maintain the sort of climate between the two giants which could lead to further gains in the form of positive disarmament.

It is too much to expect that the runaway train of armament production could be thrown into reverse quickly. It must first be slowed, then stopped, and only then moved in the reverse direction. Now, apparently, it is being slowed, and the negotiators who for more than two and a half years have been struggling to reach common ground in Helsinki and Vienna in what have been known as the SALT talks may take a large measure of credit and congratulation for what has happened in Moscow this week.

The new feeling between the two countries is the most important phenomenon. It could not likely have been achieved even half a dozen years ago. It might not have been achieved without the preliminary Nixon visit to China. The fact that it has been achieved despite the shooting war going on in Vietnam is proof positive that both countries are at last looking past incidental facts to future realities. And the chief reality is that the world will have to live in peace if it is to live at all. If the Moscow visit agreements recognize that, then we have crossed a watershed in-

Reply

I should like to make the following nments on Len Skelton's letter "Accordion"

(1) Neither Bruce Hutchison nor history books categorise the invasions of Canada by the U.S. as skirmishes.

(2) The war of 1812 ended, as I said in letter, without victory for either side due to the fact that the war was most unpopular in both Britain and the U.S. ver, Mr. Skelton seems to forget that at that time Britain was facing lone the menace of an enemy much closer to home - France's Napoleon. (3) Mr. Skelton accuses Britain of exporting her poor, etc. to the colonies. Surely Mr. Skelton will recognise that the well-heeled are not the first to leave their home-lands. However if Britain had not filled up her colonies with people — and I understand Mr. Skelton's forebears were amongst such immigrants — Canada would not exist today, to say nothing of Australia, New Zealand etc. (4) Britain like any other great power plant in a large part of the globe her form of democratic government and legal justice and in my view this is no mean accomplishment. Even in the U.S., erican common law is based on the

(5) To say that Canada is an accordion between the U.S. and Britain is just so much nonsense and I do not believe that even Mr. Skelton believes such a statement. Britain has absolutely no ly independent nation. The B.N.A. Act is still in force not because Britain wishes it but because we, as Canadians, cannot agree on a formula to change it, and Quebec leads in its support of the B.N.A.

On the other hand the U.S. owns large percentage of our industrial plant - 60%, about 90% of our petroleum industry and some 56% of our mining in-dustry. Surely even Mr. Skelton is not unperturbed about such a situation. Britain has a very small percentage interest in Canadian inlustry, oil and mining.

Therefore it is just so much nonsense to say that Canada is being squeezed by Britain and I cannot believe that Mr. Skelton believes this.

I would also remind Mr. Skelton that cholers was rampant not only in Canada in 1830 but in many parts of Europe including Britain. I cannot see that we as Canadians have anything to fear from our British and order was restored, so far as anyone connection. However I, like many other has been sure. And we may add that Canadians, am most perturbed about the somewhere in Eisenhower's book on the stranglehold on our industry and natural subject, he says free elections in South Vietnam were not desirable because they would very likely vote for joining Ho Chi resources exercised today by our southern neighbor. - M. ### Banded

Once again this year I stood for upwards of 3 hours on Douglas Street and watched United States school bands compete with each other in a contest of noise. I refer, of course, to the annual parade of American high school bands which goes under the guise of the Victoria Day Parade. But I must not forget to thank these same bands for their kindness in permitting a very small collection of Victoria based units to strut along with them in the Victoria Day

Notable were the youngsters, boys and girls really, who marched so proudly as members of drill teams, youth organizations and the cadets of the Army, Navy and Air corps. And it is nice to see these cadets on parade, for without them I could very easily forget that Canada used to have it's own RCN, RCAF and

Surely the city of Victoria, the surrounding municipalities and the local business including the large department stores, telephone and hydro companies could add their talents and make this annual event a truly Victorian Days parade.-Mrs. Shirley Orrick, 960 Clent of a century, the United States and the Soviet Union have been concentrating on the issues that divided them - Berlin, the Middle East, Korea, Vietnam, Cuba, and the organization of Western Europe but now, after many savage difences and pointless miseries, their leaders are getting together in Moscow to talk about limited but important areas of co-operation.

Nobody should expect too much. The conflict of philosophies and national objectives is as strong and wide as ever, but they have a common interest in avoiding a major war, in controlling the - now costing the nations of the world over $200 billion a year - expanding trade, co-operating in the exploration of space, and getting hold of the drug traffic, the spread of disease, pollu-

Holes in the Curtain

Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany, who took more chances than anybody else to knock a few holes in the iron curtain, hit just about the right note after the Bundestag in Bonn agreed reluctantly to ratify the treaties of friend-ship with the Soviet Union and Poland. He didn't claim, like Mr. Nixon in China, that "this was the week that changed the world," but merely that accepting realities you cannot change and compromising for peace, no matter how painful. was "the path of reason."

Well, it will be a rocky path. Brezhnev is not going to bail Mr. Nixon out of Vietnam, His tanks may very well be battering the old imperial capital of Hue while the president is watching Swan Lake at the Bolshol, but now that he has lidsted Moscow's World War II territorial gains in Europe, he is ready to talk about the world beyond Vietnam, and maybe even about the world beyond Mao Tse-tung in Peking, Chiang Kai-shek in Taipei, and Sato in Tokyo.

A lot of hard work and commonse have gone into the preparation of Mr. Nixon's Moscow mission, and limited agreements on strategic arms, trade, access to Berlin, European security, and space are about ready for signature on satellite TV in the Kremlin. So this could be the most important U.S. Soviet con-ference since the end of the last war, though that isn't saying very much changing the fundamental conflict between the two worlds.

Washington and Moscow are agreeing to disagree on ideological questions but trying not to be silly about practical questions. For example, Washington has been refusing to trade with Moscow on a

Both have been spending wast sums of money on strategic weapons and each now has enough to wipe out the other, even after a first nuclear strike, so as Churchill once asked: "Why make the rubble bounce?'

They have already agreed to keep nuclear weapons out of space and off the ocean floors, and to stop polluting the atmosphere with atomic tests in the sky, so now they are about ready to agree on controlling the production of offensive pense of exploring the universe, all of which is both sensible and long overdue.

It will be said — in fact Mr. Nixon was one of the pioneers of the argument — that trading and co-operating with the Soviets only strengthened a government

And also, that the Communists have merely changed their tactics and not their objectives, and have learned that you catch more flies with honey than with vinegar, and there is some truth in this, but as the world is going, not much. Moscow is still away behind the scientific progress of the west. She hates this argument more than anything else, but it's true. Her GNP is le ours. She is lagging seriously in agricultural and industrial production, and is away behind in linking the industrial and scientific revolutions with the most sophisticated computers.

No Monopoly

But she is not going to be denied the most modern computers and technology by an American embargo or the old American myths of "trading with the enemy," and nobody now knows this bet-ter than Mr. Nixon. He has learned since etary crisis and the devaluation of the dollar, that the Germans and Japanese have not only mastered the arts of advanced technology and mass produc-tion, but can teach us a lot about labormanagement relations, and are now competing with us effectively, not only in the markets of the world, but even in the

So he is ready to talk trade in Moscow, and not only trade but credits for unemployment being what it is in an election year in the United States. In short, the realities are now coming to the surface, in Vietnam, in Moscow, in Europe and in China. nington is just coming to the end of its pretence that military force will prevail in Indochina, rejectantly but surely. Moscow has stopped pretending that the unification of Europe, with Bri-tain in the Common Market, is a myth. West Germany has stopped pretending it. could defy Moscow's control over East Germany and Eastern Europe. Even the Arab states, though they are still pretending, know that they cannot destroy an Israel backed by Washington.

So the nations are gradually experimenting with commonsense, Nothing has been settled but everything is being dis-cussed. Vietnam is the cinder in the American eye, blinding them to everything else, but if they could look beyond it to the wider world, there is a ray of

The Record

It seems time that memories were refreshed on what has been said by very noted people regarding southeast Asia. For instance, Dwight D. Eisenhower, speaking in Seattle before a conference of governors in 1953: "Now let us as sume that we lost Indochina . . . the tin and tungsten that we so greatly value would cease coming. . . . So when the United States votes $400 millions to help that war (with the French), we are not voting a give-away program. We are voting for the cheapest way that we can to prevent the occurence of something that would be of terrible significance to the United States of America, our security our power and ability to get certain things we need from the riches of Indochinese territory and from Southeast

And it only came to light recently that the U.S. was already flying the French army from Paris to Saigon regularly — with the soft pedal down.

Anyone hear anything there about saving the southern Vietnamese from Communism? In 1954 the U.S. News and World Report in an article under the title, "Why The U.S. Risks War for In dochina: It's the Key to Control of All Asia," repeated virtually the same line that had been heard from Eisenhower as mat had been perfect any overnment at that time. It was said that the U.S. would hold Southeast Asia at "any cost." No talk as yet about saving them from Communism either. Eisenhow hoped, to start with, that we could avoid any war on the continent of Asia.

It was at the Geneva Accord that it was decided a line abould be drawn as a

But the Ministry of Internal Affairs, which controls the censors, replied: "This letter is not worthy of comment.

The secrecy over how the Board is chosen is rivalled only by the mystery surrounding its actions. The authorities seem to believe their brand of censorship and! censorship will prevent red-blooded Rhodesian youth from becoming as depraved and de-cadent as their counterparts in Britain. But the censors are aroused not only by the prospect of moral contami-nation. Possible political intoo, comes under their scrutiny

Books on Rhodesian poli-tics, other than right-wing ones, have no place. Nathan Shamuyarira's "Crisis in Rho-desia," and Stanlake Samkange's "Origins of Rhode-sia" are banned, as also are.

the biographies and writings of Martin Luther King.
A former federal press attache, Lawrence Vambe, has written about Rhodesia in "The Ill-Fated People." A reviewer in the Rhodesia Herald said of it, "A striking element of the book is its moderation. Even on emotional subjects. Even on emotional subjects, he is genrally accurate and not outrageously anti-Euro-pean, nor does he make claims that historians deny." The book was banned at the end of April.

Was it considered politically corruptive? Or merely against the interests of those in political power? Rhodesians will never know.

It is difficult to find a pat-tern in the workings of the censors. They banned Krafft-Ebing's "Psychopathia Sex-ualis" in 1965, although, as a text book, it seemed an un-likely best-seller. They also banned a sex-education film, "Michael and Helga," after describing it as "subversive to morality, offensive, out-rageous and disgustful."

By PETER NIESWAND Manchester Guardian

The censors also asked if it was right to "sell this film for cash so that children might snigger, and a brutal and licentious soldiery, full of beer, could sit at the back of the cinema and scoff." No one scoffed when the censors left the lesbian love scene uncut in the film of D. H. Lawrence's "The Fox," while at the same time totally excising the heterosexual sequence fact, few probably even ought to wonder. The film of "Catch-22" was found offensive by the censor because it "depicted corrup-tion, treachery, horror, vio-lence, and sexual incidents, including perversion and pros-titution." The censors particulary objected to a sequence showing "an overlong queue outside the brothel," made up not only of enlisted men, but of officers as well. The pro-ducer, said the censors seemed determined to show that escapism to brothels had been indulged in by all ser-

"We do not agree with this view," said the board in an appeal judgment. "But be that as it may, our objection to the scene is that nowhere is such behavior condemned. It is apparently regarded as quite natural and normal behavior and we, consequently, consider that it is subversive of morality."

It may seem from this that anything sexy, horrible, vio-lent or corrupt must be kept out of the country. But there's a Rhodesian Catch-22 to this: right-wing sex is permitted. The censors, who have just banned "Down All the Days," the autobiographical novel by the crippled Christie Brown, have discovered no objection to a raunchy book called "Call It Rhodesia."

Consider this passage, in which a young white Rhode sian girl is playing in the bush with an adolescent black: "Sit down," Floria ordered, ignoring his protests. "I want to see more."

The sight of the male organ was, of course, familiar to her, but never in its roused

Her eyes went to his face.
"Do you want to mate? Is that why it's like that?"
His eyes rolled in terror. The passage ends with Fiona saying: "You're just a messy nigger."

She grows up quickly and towards the end of the book sustains an orgasm on horse-back. Later, while swimming nude on her back in a river, she notices an African man coming through the water towards her.

"His desire thrust ahead of him like a bowsprit, like a periscope, cutting the water, gripping her gaze so that she

Only at the ultimate second did Fiona throw herself back, and as she did so there was a and as she did so there was a furious conflict in her mind. For this could be the answer that she sought, this strength and animal virility."

It wasn't, of course, for although "Call It Rhodesia" panders to white sexual fantasies, it is a right-wing nough

Fiona escapes by drawing her teeth into "flesh that was unnaturally swollen for the instant." Then she strangles the African and lets his body float away down the river. 'Call It Rhodesia' is in its third paperback reprint, and through an imaginative series of rapes, tortures, sex, prostitutes, revenge, and death, it also plays down liberals and journalists and tries to explain why the Unilateral De-claration of Independence in 1965 was a good thing. For the censorship board, this final moral seems to be adequate Governments paid for nothing. Taxpayers paid for everything. There is a growing feeling across the country — in gov-ernments, hospital administrations, among doctors and their agencies, among the general public — that now that the system is settled in, is time to move against undue costs. The question is, how do we address ourselves to the problem?

It comes like a voice from the Stone Ages to be told by Dr. Harry D. Roberts, president of the Canadian Medical Association, that an essential of control is that each patient should pay directly "within should pay directly "within his capabilities" a portion of medical, hospital, nursing home and all other health care costs. "Perhaps we should renew or refresh our efforts," said Dr. Roberts to tario Medical Associations, "to convince our govern-ments, our people and our membership that in this world absolutely nothing comes

It is Dr. Roberts who needs renewing and refreshing on the subject. The taxpayers know that health care does not come free; they have been paying for it.

But it is strange to hear a president of the CMA suggest-ing that there can be many doctors doing any milking.
The doctors were working overtime before ever medi-care came along; the CMA itself has constantly been con-cerned about the shortage of doctors. When have they found the time for all this Doctors are not grabbing for patients, they are being forced to turn them away. ## He Is the Emperor of Us All

By TOM WICKER

No one knows, said the headline in The New York Times, What He Might Do. And indeed, no one, including Secretary of State William Rogers, summoned home from Europe for a National Security Council meeting, could know what President Richard Nixon might decide upon as an antidote in the crisis in South Vietnam.

The press has described admiringly the range of explosive options open to him; members of his administration had been hinting darkly of the terrible vengeance this unchecked Caesar might choose to wreak upon some-thing abstract known only as "Hanoi" or "the enemy"; but the decision was Mr. Nixon's. And when Mr. Nixon in his majesty chose to speak to the U.S. people about his intentions in Southeast Asia, it was an act of noblesse oblige as well as an exercise in self-justification. Nothing in the law required him to confide in a single citizen; and although it was true that he spoke only after three hours of consultation with his primary national security associates, it is wellknown that these officials more nearly ratify than form presidential judgments.

Has it come to this, then, that it lies within the sole province of one man, unlimitprovince of one man, unlimited by law or opinion, whether elected by landslide or hair's breadth, to decide without let or hindrance how the military power of the United States shall be used even in a situation his own policies have done much to create? Is that what the constitution means, when it says that the president shall be commander-inchief of the armed forces? As to the first question, there seems little doubt that the answer is yes. Just last year, for instance, Congress passed an amendment to the Military Procurement Authorization bill which declared it to be the policy of the United States to bring to an end "at the earliest practicable date" all military operations in In-dochina, subject only to the release of all U.S. prisoners of

What about President Nixon's reply to that? Upon signing the measure on Nov. 17, he declared flatly that the amendment was "without binding force or effect and it does not reflect my judgment about the way in which the war should be brought to an end." It would not change his policies, he said, and in fact "legislative actions such as this hinder rather than assist in the search for a negotiated

Such high-handedness is not to Mr. Nixon. greatest of presidents, Abraham Lincoln, interpreted the presidential "war powers" so broadly that he repeatedly overrode both Congressional wishes and military advice; and since his actions saved the union, history generally accounts him strong and wise for having done so. But Lin-coln was waging war for national survival, in a situation in which there was no prece-dent and which does not provide a precedent for anything that has followed — least of all a deliberate act of presidential policy such as Viet-

Mr. Nixon, in contrast, now relies almost exclusively upon Commander-in-Chief's power to protect the lives of U.S. soldiers as constitutional justification for whatever he might choose to do in Southeast Asia; yet, it is arguable that U.S. soldiers are in jeopardy primarily because Mr. Nixon's own policies have kept them in Vietnam. So the mere act of putting troops into a place, or keeping them there, which is in itself a pre-sidential decision, becomes the presidential justification tion he may choose to take.

Mr. Nixon has not, for example, resorted to the use of nuclear weapons in Southeast Asia; fortunately, there is no sensible military rationale for doing so. Nevertheless, the fact that the president has not so chosen does not alter the fact that it was his choice; sensible or not, he could order nuclear warfare tomorrow tomorrow and no man could stop him, unless the military chose to revolt - hardly a desirable alternative.

stitution could not foresee the nuclear era, they could have had no intent to lavish upon the president that degree of power; indeed, almost every other line of the document they produced suggests the extent to which they mistrusted unchecked power, whether vested in an executive or in a people's assembly,

Mr. Nixon need not be psychoanalyzed or even mistrust-ed in order to perceive that that mistrust was well found-ed; for as he went on the air it was terrifyingly true that no one knew what the president would do, that no immediate means of influencing his judgment was at hand, that no real way existed to stop him from following some apocalyptic course.

He was in that moment as true an emperor as ever existed and scarcely more ac-countable; a people who want-ed peace could still be given war at his dictate; and what good would it do to vote him now if the world were an ash or "the enemy" had been ob

Beware the 'Moral' War

Every time some high-standing politician utters that line about our not even wanting anything in return for all the fighting we have done in Vietnam and all the money we have spent out there, somebody ought to stand up in the audience and cry, "Why not?"

Wars make sense if you are attacked, but fighting a war out of pure high-grade unadulterated surpassing moral excellence is simply bad policy.

It also makes for very cruel wars. Something about fighting for the sake of goodness seems to sharpen an army's thirst for butchery. It is probably the conviction implicit in such wars that he more people you kill, the more you elevate the moral tone of the public sit-

This consideration, however, is incidental to the point, which is that expecting some spoils from war is not so terrible a thing as we make it sound, and is probably preferable to making war for uplift. If we had gone into the Vietnam War with gain in mind, we should probably have been out of it years ago, to the profit of everybody.

For one thing, the Victnamese might have understood, us. Having lived with the French for a century, they could have coped with another exploiter who wanted to drain their country for wealth. The example of their defeating the French might have persuaded us that they could also make the price higher for us than the goods was now that that they could also make the price higher for us than the goods were worth. We might not even have bothered to risk the Yankee reputation where the wily French had failed.

Instead we came to do good. We would help them avoid red Satan's claws, make them part of "the free world," give them the Constitution of the United States, parliamentary government and the works of Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln, whence flowed shopping malls, high-rise office buildings, drive-in hamburger stands and all the rest of it. Democracy!

How baffling it must have seemed to How defining it must have seemed to them, seeing those extollers of capitalism with its belief in the moral superiority of greed telling them that nothing was wanted, no land, no wealth, in return for the goodness to be granted. How that confusion must have been compounded as they watched us proceed to destroy their country out of a high moral purpose.

ceed to destroy their country out of a high moral purpose.

The Romans would have thought our policy absurd. When Rome went to war, it was to get something out of it. Those famous Roman highways were not built because the Romans felt an obligation to bring the blessings of rapid transit to barbaric lands. They simply made it quicker to get the loot back to Rome.

The British operated on the same principle. Good government, of course, followed the Roman conquest, just as Christianity and good railroads followed.

ily exploited than the disorderly; good government and Christianity brought stability to the conquered. Roman high-ways and British railroads hastened the ways and British railroads hastened the booty's progress to Rome and London.

By many tests their system was also successful for the countries they exploited. Not many politicians in Washington would agree aloud with that proposition. "Imperialism" and "colonialism" are bad words in contemporary political cant. even thoush one corresponding to the contemporary of t proposition. Imperiaism and "colon-ialism" are bad words in contemporary political cant, even though one consequence of Rome's was Britain, and one consequence of Britain's was the United States. (Purists at demogoguery, of course, will say this simply proves the evil of the system.)

The American system — fighting wars to improve the moral tone of the world — ought to be abandoned. As professed believers in the moral excellence of the commercial principle, we should go back to the sensible Roman-British policy. Next time, let us hear no talk about not wanting anything at all from war — nothing but a better class of government in the world.

* * * Next time, let everybody know it: If we go in with guns, we expect to get something out of it. To get plenty out of it, in fact. With this approach we can base our decisions about war making on calculations similar to those we use when deciding whether to buy a new plant, or to merge with consolidated, and at that sort of thing we are pretty good.

As enforcers of moral excellence we are embarrassing, to put it as mildly as shrdlucmswypetaoi

Japanese Strike Halts Coal

William Dunean, acting port manager, said Tuesday no Japanese container ships have arrived for three weeks. He said he fears the strike may throw ships further out of phase following the grain-ship tle-up here last winter.

Shipping company officials say the seamen's strike has been sporadic, with crews working when they want to...

Food Price Wars

'Likely to Last'

TORONTO (CP) - The

rokonto (CP) — The chairman of the company that controls the Loblaw supermark at chain predicted Wednesday that food price wars and other fights between supermarket chains are going "to go on for a long long time."

W. Garfield Weston told the annual meeting of George Weston Ltd. of Toronto "these scrappy days in this particu-lar industry are apt to last for a long time to come."

After the meeting, the Weston board approved an increase in quarterly dividends to 23 cents from 21 cents, payable Oct. 1 to shareholders of

A spokesman for Kaiser Resources Ltd. said the firm expects more than 500,000 long tons of coal from its mine in southeastern British Columbia will be stored at Roberts Bank Port by next week. Last week there were 390,000 tons.

Fording Coal Ltd. also has an unspecified amount await-ing shipment through the Kaiser bulk-loading facility at Roberts Bank.

In North Vancouver, Neptune Terminals Ltd. estimated it will have 300,000 tons stockpiled by next week. A Neptune spokesman said the terminal could handle up to 500,000 tons without difficulty.

And it earned us Road Test Magazine's Car of the Year Award

Montego is one car that's completely new for 1972. We put together a lot of better ideas to win you over. We gave it a ride, maneuverability and ease of handling that's superb. And we won Road Test's Car of the Year Award. We gave it a similar four-bar link suspension that we put on our most expensive cars. And we gave it more headroom, legroom and luggage capacity than most of our competition.

Outside, Montego is totally beautiful with a styling that's clean and uncluttered. Inside, you'll find unsurpassed luxury. The Montego MX has full width seats of richly woven cloth and vinyl, deeply foam-padded, to hold you in soft but firm comfort. A two-spoke steering wheel gives the driver a clear view of the five circular instrument pods, which are set off by panel facings of simulated cherrywood. Underfoot, there's deep loop nylon carpeting. And each car has a deluxe sound insulation system designed to keep street sounds out and the luxury of

A rock festival at Nanamo and a "tent-in" on Salt Spring Island over the long weekend illustrate health hazards young people should guard against, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said Wednesday.

Greater Victoria's senior public health officer said seven people are in hospital at Nanaimo from food poisoning at the rock festival.

It may be some residents of Greater Victoria are feeling the ill effects of the same outbreak because the crowd of 17,000 came from near and far.

Whithread said one girl has come down with infectious hepatitis following the Salt Spring tent-in and about 75 people in contact with her have been treated with gamma globulin, a blood extract thought to be of help in strengthening immunities. Between 400 and 500 young people took part in the camping out, overflowing a campsite and spilling on to a picnic area, he said.

They did not take precautions like boiling water taken from streams in farm areas and "we know that some of them had sexual intercourse."

Clergymen Favor All-Night Church

By LINDA HUGHES Times Staff

An all-night ministry may provide sanctuary denied by Victoria's firmly locked

In a survey, the Times found no churches in Victoria keeping their doors open overnight. Apparently "thy refuge is the church" applies only during regular hours.

Flewin was found guilty by a jury of manslaughter in the killing of Russell Streeter, 21, outside the Colony Motor Inn on Douglas. He originally had been charged with non-capital murder.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan said the slaying was a "sense-less, vicious act" of a type "only too common in modern society." He said a stiff sentence was needed as a deterto protect society at Flewin, a short, dark man with shoulder-length hair,was 20 years old when he stabbed Streeter to death on the hotel parking lot after what police reports show was a wild, bottle-throwing scene in which neither of the principals was involved.

Evidence showed Streeter confronted Flewin about 1:30 a.m. outside the beer parlor

Police were called after a car was being driven at high speed in circles around the lot, and at one point a beer bottle was thrown through the windshield of another auto

While police were at scene interviewing persons in connection with the wind-shield incident, Streeter staggered to the side of the police ruiser and collapsed.

Swiftsure Eyes On Forecaster

With one day to go, skippers and crows competing in the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca classics this weekend are anxious-

Will there be wind to send them over the start line in fine style against an adverse tide?

This is the question bothering skippers as they work out

Chief weather officer Allan McQuarrie promises "reasonable wirld" for the start, scheduled for 9:30 a.m. and 9:45 a.m. Saturday off Brotchie Ledge. The big "if" is what direction it will blow - east or west?

McQuarrie says there will be a switch to the west som that day — but when?

The start is expected to be under cloudy skies but by the time the armada sails in from Race Rocks on the last stretch home-Sunday, the westerlies are expected to bring them back under colorful spinnakers to the finish line.

Officials at the Royal Viotoria Yacht Club worked late dnesdaycompiling losts of the largest Swiftsure on record. A total of 213 boats will compete in the two races.

The club will be well represented in both classics, with several boats taking on the annual testing for the first time.

Making their first try at Swiftsure will be Bob Horner's 47-foot sloop Pandora, Bill Tellier's 50-foot cutter West by North, and Bob Hosie's 34-foot sloop Triad. Today, part of the Swiftsure fleet began tying up in the ner Harbor. By the time pre-Swiftsure festivities start Friday enling the harbor's inner reaches will be a forest of spars.

Getting things off to a musical start, Herman Bergink will play a Pre-Roll Call program on the Netherlands Carillon from 7:15 to 7:45 p.m. The roll call ceremony will be performed aboard the Bay's replica of the Nonsuch. The Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps will carry out a Sunset Ceremony on the lawns of the legislative buildings.

During the hours the boats are racing the 136.2-mile and 75.6-mile classics, volunteers will man an information centre at Royal Vic, keeping a plot of the boats' positions. The phone number is 592-2441.

Beliveau Still a Star In Baby-Cuddling Role

It may seem a pity to some what the passing months have done to Jean Beliveau, hockey superstar, but don't dare try to tell that story to over 100 Victoria mothers, and their offspring

Instead of playing centre ice for Montreal Canadiens, Beliveau has taken to coddling babies. And if he was nearly always an all-star in his 20-year career with the Canadiens, he's still a success. On Wednesday he was an instant hit at the Hill-side Shopping Mail in the Victorian Days' version of the Disper Derby.

Debonair, suave, and "positively handsome" (as one minishirted mother remarked) in his two-button, grey pin stripe, Beliveau wowed 'em at the Mall in his official capacity as a judge for the Chamber of Commerce baby contest.

There were small babies, large babies, boy babies and girl babies; babies in buggies, and babies in shopping carts; and if you couldn't tell a baby without a mother, the mothers were all numbered. Even father, One dad (No. 1) carried his toddler in a back-pack

This was the first stop in a long day for Beliveau, here as a representative of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, and big Jean smiled through it all. And no it wasn't a chore:

'T've been doing it all my life," he laughed.

'It's been a long time since I handled one of my own," he added, as he posed, holding one baby, for a photographer. His only daughter is 15.

'There Are Better and Younger'

And that was the theme, autograph seekers everywhere, hucksters selling wall banners featuring Beliveau in action, and in full color for $1.50; and press, commercial and plain ordinary camera fiends snapping away at will. One mother even forgot her place, bless her, and posed with Beliveau, WITHOUT her bad timing.

"I'm just sorry," he said, "that it didn't happen about five years ago, then I would have had a chance to play, and so would some of the others..."

"But I am certainly happy that it has happened," he continued. "This series is needed."

Of the Russians, he added significantly: "I have seen them play only twice, but I know this. The Canadians had better be in shape. The Russians will be. All European teams are in better general condition than we are."

Coaching! "No, that's the same routine, the same schedule, as playing," he said. "And that's one reason I retired when I did. "I wanted to be closer to my family.

Quebec Offered Him Post in WHA

If Beliveau has never actually been offered an NHL coaching position, "It's because when I retired I said I didn't want one." But the World Hockey Association wouldn't take that as final." The Quebec team offered me the general manager's job," he said.

But the replacements started to come through and Adanacs caught fire with 10 straight goals to grab a 13-12 lead after 40 minutes.

Jim Rickbeil, who was in Prince George at the start of Prime George at the start of the season, fired four goals. Brian Bergum, a late Van-couver cut, popped in three. Both scored key goals late in the third period and Rick-beil's final tally knotted the game at 18-18 with one minute

This region also supports allen-introduced species but, nowhere near the numbers that have been introduced and now have viable populations in the southern half of the Island.

Three groups of freshwater fish are represented in this region as native resident, alien resident and anadromous spe-

Often asked is the question: "Did the resident special of the resident of the reside develop anadromous life styles as an adaptation for survival because of low food stocks? Or, were the original fish coastal migrants which stocked the streams with anadromous populations who in turn became resident populations when landlocked or when they remained in the stream?"

The current theory is that the salmonoid family originated as a species in the vicinity of the Bering Sea and developed into as a species in the vicinity of the Bering Sea and developed into sub-species as it populated the east and west coasts of the Pacific and Atlantic.

Steelhead (Salmo gairdneri Richardson), the anadromous rainbow trout, is the trophy and the elite sports fish for the freshwater stream angler. Their immense size, averaging eight to ten pounds and up to 28 pounds, in contrast to the small streams in which they are found astounds the angler.

There are two distinct races of steelhead, the summer-run fish and the winter-run fish. There are certain physiological differences in the races that are detectable only under very close scrutiny. The time when these fish are found in the stream is the usually accepted identification.

All streams and minor creeks have major runs of winter steelhead usually starting in mid-December and ending in mid-April. Summer run steelhead start entering the streams as

During the overlapping period the difference in the two races is apparent when the fish is cleaned. Summer-run steel-head have small seed roe about thumb size while winter run fish have full skeins of ripe roe.

Coastal cutthroats are both resident and anadromous in the streams in this region. They usually average just below one pound and may range as high as five pounds.

The names, harvest trout and tinsel trout indicate the major periods when anglers seek these flashy game fish. Major schools or runs enter the streams during October and again in mid-April through May. In the fall their entry usually coincides with the runs of salmon and the easy feed available from the spawn. In the spring they enter when the pink and chum salmon fry are migrating to sea to feed voraciously with every incoming tide on the "tinsel" fry.

Making great use of their backs' tremendous quickness, the Welsh visitors were a threat to score from any point on the field, and only some good tackling and aggressive tactics by the James Bay forwards kept te score from becoming much higher.

As it was, Bridgend winger John Williams switched on those lets he calls lezs and

From the kickoff, Bridgend controlled the ball and moved it down to James Bay's 25-yard line. There, Lewis booted the ball towards the goal line and it appeared James Bay would have easy possession. But the ball was bobbled and Lang scooted in and grabbed it, diving over for the try. Before approxi-mately 600 fans were settled in their seats, the score was

Hesitancy Hindered Hosts' Hopes

The James Bay players exhibited reluctance to pass off the ball when they should have, and it cost them. Several times, they appeared to be on the verge of a breakaway to the ball, trying to make it on his own, and Bridgend would stifle the play.

Another thing that hurt James Bay was their ten-dency to be caught offside, especially in their own end of the field. Lewis scored one of three penalty kicks off a James Bay offside and nar-rowly missed on two others.

BUTCHART GARDENS. Developed from an old, cavernous limestone quarry-over half a century ago to become one of the world's most unusual, most written about, talked about, admired attractions. Many visitors any they are even lovelier under the romantic night lighting (every evening, dusk till II p.m.). Be sure to see the fabulous Sunken Garden and the spectacular "Ross Fountains" in the Lake Garden as they present their colorful "Ballet to the Stars" (continuous performances). This alone is worth the price of admission.

FIGHAL RESTAURANT open every day, serving dentrul lunches and afternoon teas 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., icious hot dinners 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Coffee and Snack r always open.

HERE'S A GOOD SUGGESTION. Plan to arrive late in the afternoon. See the gardens by sunlight, then relax and dine leisurely in the Floral Restaurant. As darkness takes over, see the gardens again as a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, illy ponds and fountains to create a fairyland, softly perfumed by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand, words fail to describe it!

Anglican, UC Union Backed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A United Church minister said Wednesday that if United and wednesday that if United and Anglican churches wait until all theological differences are resolved and a plan of union is unanimously approved by all members, the proposed union of the two churches will never take place.

"We all hate to give up our cherished traditions," Rev. John McKay of Westminster United Church in Windsor and 1972-73 president of his church's London conference, said in an interview.

"Some hate it more than others and some church members undoubtedly will leave the new church rather than give them (the traditions) up."

Mr. McKay said he personally favors union and will be willing, as a measure of compromise, to kneel for ordination into the new church before an Anglican bishop if the leaders of both churches decide that is a necessary step on the road to union.

"However, if it becomes apparent that the United Church is going to become just a branch or section of the Anglican Church, then I can't accept such a plan of union."

Freeway Foes 'Reactionary'

QUEREC (CP) — A transportation consultant says op-ponents of expressways are reactionaries — rebelling against a North American habit of trying to get the most road for the least money.

Robert Smith, a Toronto engineer here for the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said Wednesday in an interview freeways are not an alternative to rapid transit but merely an expanded component of the roads system.

Mr. Smith has conducted transportation studies for more than a dozen Ontario

He agreed that expressways have split neighborhoods and disrupted communities within the city they serve.

"I'm afraid they've been very destructive in the past," he said, "and I'm afraid we're going to have to break some more eggs in the fucars and that poorer groups in society benefit most from public transit.

He said downtown usage has a self-regulating mecha-nism by which the costs of parking and other factors tend to limit the entry of au-tomobiles into downtown areas as these areas approach saturation.

LABORERS USE CARS

To get to work, Mr. Smith said, many working-class peo-ple such as construction workers are almost forced to have a car and use the road system while more privileged groups make use of public transit systems which, he said, are generally subsidized by cities. by cities.

"It's the lower socio-economic groups that typical-ly do not benefit from tran-sit," he said, "and it's higher economic groups who are ty-pically being subsidized by transit."

This was because the most highly-paid jobs in society were generally concentrated in downtown areas.

As examples Mr. Smith cited dial-a-bus and GO trains —Government of Ontario commuter trains.

He said the dial-a-bus systen is being developed in low-population-density, higher-than-average income areas in Regina in residential district where many families have

The GO trains, he said, run through high income areas along the Lake Ontario shoreline and are receiving a $2 million subsidy annually.

from $232 million in 1970.

Besides the foreign debt payment, Uruguay has $70 million in commercial arrears. That means Uruguayans have paid in pesos for merchandize imported from abroad, but their money is stopped at the Central Bank, which lacks dollars to complete the payments abroad. So foreign suppliers are dunning Uruguayans for overdue bills, and credit abroad is being restricted. Imports dropped to $222 million in 1970, and the government suspended many categories of imports because of the foreign currency shortage.

President Bordaberry, a conservative cattle rancher, has turned to the International Monetary Fund for help, despite stiff criticism from the Broad Front, a coalition of leftist parties with a strong voice in Congress.

Throughout Latin America, leftists say the "IMF formula" leads to more indebtedness abroad and requires do-mestic austerity policies which hurt wage earners. Hay Fever often easy, because the person begins to sneeze and to have a my nose and excessive tears and itching in his eyes, usually in rumiy nose and excessive tears and itching in his eyes, usually in early August. In spring, summer, or fall, millions of Americans start sneezing, day and night. Their noses will stuff up, their ears may become congested, and their eyes may be so itchy and swollen, and tearing, that they have trouble reading or working. Usually the trouble starts in August, and relief doesn't come until the first cold day in late October.

Probably the worst allergen (gen means produces) is ragweed, which causes the most severe and the greatest number of hay fever cases. Only a few places in the United States are free from ragweed, but it is most prevalent in the Central West, South and East. The ragweed hay fever season in most areas is August and September, although in the South it begins later.

Other troublemakers in various parts of the country are tumbleweed, hemp, sage, and goldenrod, which is related to ragweed and may cause trouble in ragweed-sensitive persons. Zinnias, dandelion, daisies and other flowers are also a source of trouble for some people. During May, June and July the common grasses, such as blue grass and timothy, cause trouble. Any good allergist knows that at a certain time of the year, in a certain part of the country, certain grasses and pollens will be causing the trouble, and will take the necessary steps to bring the patient

In some cities, each morning, perhaps over the radio, a man-will tell what the pollen count is in the air. Hay fever may attack certain persons because they were born with a very sensitive nose. Sometimes the lining of the nose swells and makes breath-ing difficult. Sometimes this swelling spreads from the throat through a tube up into the ear and causes trouble there. There are some people who have a year-round hay fever (which we doctors call allergic rhimits). The symptoms are the same as those of seasonal hay fever, except that they can be caused by such substances as dust, feathers, animal hairs (from dogs, cats, horses and other animals), molds, foods or bacterial infections.

Most patients are treated with desensitization shots. Ot are treated with antihistamine drugs and some are helped by having the air in the room filtered and cleaned with the help of an electric apparatus put in the window.

It may be bad to let a child with hay fever go untreated, because his trouble may grow into a serious asthma.

KNIT & CHAT

By MAY E. MAC LEAN

I have been asked several times recently, what one does when you find you don't have sufficient wool to finish your knitting and you just can't find the same dye lot anywhere?

Well, this does present quite a problem I know, especially when another dye lot looks the same in the ball, the chances are that there will be a distinct line if you begin with another dye lot in the middle of the back, front or sleeves.

If you are only a ball short, work the front bands or the collar in the new dye lot. If you are several balls short, you will have to work both the sleeves in the new dye lot. While there will be a slight difference, only you will know, and the chances are that it will go unmoticed by others.

If you are not sure how much you will require for

If you are not sure how much you will require for

If you are not sure how much you will require for your garment, very often the shop owner will put away a couple of extra balls, but naturally she will not hold these too long, or she too will be left with the problem of two balls of an odd dye lot.

I have been asked too, about making machine buttonholes on the fronts of sweaters, that have had the front bands backed by ribbon. First let me say that it is most important to wash the ribbon first, as if there is going to be any shiplesse of the ribbon if the say what the real states to beauty the real states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon if states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon if states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon if states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon if states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon if states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon if states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states to be any shiplesse of the ribbon in the same states the same states to be same states to be

But Armenian Food -And Its Flavor Worth the Effort

By SUSAN RUTTAN Times Staff

To cook Armenian food properly, you have to spend all day at it. But being a working mother, Shusham Egoyan doesn't have all day. So she compromises. She serves her family quick Armenian dishes or standard Canadian fare with an Armenian flavor.

In the traditional Armenian household, noon and evening meals are often prepared at the same time, said Mrs. Egoyan, Of course, one usually has plenty of servants to Lamb is the main meat used, as it is in all Middle Eastern dishes. There's a lot of spice in the food, said Mrs. Egoyan, but the spices are subtle, not hot.

"To cook well, you must cook for people you love," said Mrs. Egoyan.

She cooks for her husband Joseph and two children, Atom, 12, and Eve, 8. Mr. and Mrs. Egoyan own a modern furniture shop on Fort St., and Mrs. Egoyan is an interior decorator. Her family lives in a white painted house on Tudor Ave., right on the edge of Cadboro Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Egoyan were born in a large Armenian community in Cairo, Egypt. This community has kept its gion — Christianity — for generations, said Mrs, Egoyan, Armenia itself, which is between Persia and Turkey, has not been an independent country for many centuries and is now part of the Soviet Union, However, the Armenians' Christian religion has always kept them distinct from their Moslem neighbors. The Egoyans came to Victoria 10 years ago.

Following are three Armenian recipes — a salad, a main course and a dessert—that the average ambitious cook can tackle.

play and schools should fill are as challeng-ing as was his father's book, Baby and Child Care, when it hit the book stands for the first time in 1946.

He advocates the formation of "broker organizations", made up of teachers, curricu-lum developers and media specialists, whose job would be to make museums a more vital-part of the community.

"Too often," he says, "museums tend not to respond — we are not willing to put our selves in the market place."

'Client Categories'

Suggesting that such organizations could well be called Muse ("because they stimulated the education and cultural juices of Greece"), Spock says museums could break down into "client categories," the services they should provide.

These, he says, are services to those who visit museums, workshops and circulation of materials to teachers and a community service division. The latter, he explains, should be there to help groups in need of guidance, from boys' clubs to drop-in centres.

A CMA member challenged Spock Wednesday when he outlined ways in which a two-year-old could learn to handle a microscope and not view it as an unexplained mechanism in a museum.

A man suggested that this type of thing could supercede a teacher's role and advance the child beyond the accepted stage of devel-opment. This, he added, would make it difficult for teachers.

Spock minced no words: "I'd like to make it perfectly clear," he said, "the educational establishment has no idea how to reach kids or what they need,'

Spock added that he was convinced of this in spite of the fact he serves on the school board of his home town, the 5,000-person community of Lincoln, Mass

versities need to start collecting stastical ammunition to fight sexual discrimination, a meeting of women faculty members at the University of Calgary was told this week.

Naomi Griffiths, committee chairman of the status of academic women for the Canadian Association of University Teachers, said individual cases of discrimination should not be made the battlefield for the whole question.

Instead, groups should callect all the data available on female job applications, female hiring and female applications to graduate departments. "It would be difficult work, and a great deal of research but this kind of global attack is extremely valuable and does bring results." If the research shows job discrimination on the basis of sex, pressure can be brought to bear on the universities from a number of angles, said Miss Griffiths, a member of Conle

In fact, it's now legally possible for most courts to order a wife to support her former husband after divorce—if she happens to be the breadwinner. For the next shot, we left adequate space. He focused the camera, reset the timer, raced to the sofa, and tripped over the cord to the timer. The camera took a shot of him sprawled face down across the marble-topped table.

On the third try, he focused the camera, set the timer, changed the routing to avoid the cord hazard, and sat down. We all smiled. And smiled. The camera didn't flash. "?%&!!" he said, and got up just as the camera took a picture of his belt buckle.

MAKE LOVE, NOT FAT! SEXY DIET ADVANCED

NEW YORK (UPI) - Contending sexual intercourse rapidly burns up calories, a physician specializing in weight control has come up with a diet based on increasd sex activity he claims can help a person lose up to five ounds a month.

Dr. Abraham I. Friedman said sex "was the ideal sub-stitute for the gratification of emotional overeating" in an except from his forthcoming book, "How Sex Can Keep You Silm," in the June issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

"I advised my patients to tional overeating, to increase their sexual activity as much as possible. Make love, not fat!' was to be their motto,' the New York doctor said.

of them (his patients) had sexual difficulties . . . they were substituting food for sex or love" and he had to "reverse the procedure and use sex in place of food."

"The results were gratifying," he said. "Patients who formerly were unable to lose weight began to do so."

Friedman, who said that for the past 25 years he has devoted his practice exclusively to weight control listed three planations for weight loss while on his diet:

• Increased energy expenditure. "It has been estimated that about 200 calories are expended during the average act of sexual inter-regulating centres of the brain. Some researchers be lieve the centre of sexual response is located in the same area of the brain that contains the centre of appetite control "thus it is very likely that increased activity of one centre (sex) many have dampening effect on the other (appetite)."

 Substitution of one basic need for another.
"When people are deprived of love and sex they often turn to food and overeat. By indulging in more sex rather than in more food, you are substituting one emotional need for another and this can remove the desire and com-

Trimming Rock Plants Keeps Them Bushy

Soon the bright rock plants that every beginner wants to grow will have finished their spring display. Before they become straggly and dull, there is a job for you to do.

This is the annual shearing of each plant to transform it into a bright green mound for summer attraction and a mass of bloom next spring.

First let us be sure we are talking about the right plants.
The three A's of the beginner's rock garden are Alyssum (yellow), Aubrieta (shades of mauve) and Arabis (white).
All are perennial, therefore repay the attentions you give them when flowering is almost finished. Left to themselves, the centers become bare and long straggling growths end in poor blossoms the following years.

At this time, there is very little chance of cutting off too much growth, for the stems that are left soon produce new green shoots.

Take secretairs to small plants heldings beautiful.

Take secateurs to small plants, holding a handful of flowering ends and cutting them off in one nip of the cutters. With larger plants you may be able to lift the ends with one blade of shears and work around each plant with two or three

If you find any completely browned pieces, cut them out from the center of the plant. Normally, the centers will sprout new shoots within a few days of trimming the ends.

On sloping banks or in rock pockets, it will pay to add a handful of screened compost and sand to each plant, tucking it beneath the remaining growth where summer watering will not wash it away.

The bare appearance of a beginner's rock garden in summer is partially due to lack of water. Normally our pattern of weather from early May until early September is of little rainfall. The month is thus far following the patern.

When the cutting back is completed, a gentle, fine sprink-ling for several hours will do a lot of good and no harm to anything else you are likely to have planted.

Your three A's will take on a new life. If a prolonged drought occurs during late July, another soaking will be in order. The appearance and health of the plants will be so improved that you'll be encouraged to extend similar treatment to creeping phloxes and perennial candytuft (Iberis).

Rook plants which extend their growth by control of the plants with the plants of the plants which actions the plants with the plants which actions the plants with the plants which actions the plants with the plants with the plants will be so improved that you'll be encouraged to extend similar treatment to creeping plants and plants will be so improved that you'll be encouraged to extend similar treatment to creeping plants and plants are plants.

Rock plants which extend their growth by sending out rooting stems do not require this clipping back since the ex-tension shoots have their own roots as a means of obtaining food requirements.

You get to know your plants by working with them. You discover their habits, how to propagate them, and how to con-

There are still many bridge players who are reluctant to make pre-emptive bids. Their feeling probably arises from an innate conviction that it is wrong to make a bid which figures to go down. They are mistaken, of course.

When one makes a pre-emp tive bid on a poor hand, his aim is to make it difficult or impossible for the opponents, who rate to have the better cards, from interchanging in-formation. For the privilege formation. For the privilege of pre-empting, he is willing to pay a small price (if he gets doubled and goes down) rather than the big price he would have to pay if the oppo-nents were allowed to bid in unmolested fashion, to arrive at an easily makable game or

In today's deal, we have a good illustration of the pre-emptive bid in action. Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

As can be observed, North-South can make six spades, their only loser being a diamond. This does not imply that six spades is an excellent contract. Actually, it is not, since success depends on avoiding the lose of a spade trick. On this day, as it happened, the four adversely-held spades were divided 2-2.

It shoul be mentioned that North thought long and hard before he finally made his four-spade bid. From North's position, South had to have a good hand for his entry into the bidding at the three-level, As North viewed it, his king of clubs figured to be a loser, since East rated to have the club ace for the latter's openclub ace for the latter's open-

North decided to forget about a slam. Had East not bid, North-South would probably have reached a small slam in

It is interesting to note that while only 12 tricks can be made at spades, 13 tricks are there for the taking at hearts.

Assuming that West made his normal lead of the diamond king, dummy's ace would win the trick. Then would come the king, queen, and jack of Spades would be cash next, four diamonds being discarded from dummy. South woul then ruff out his re-maining diamond with the board's last trump. Thus, played at hearts, South would make seven spade tricks, one diamond, and five trumps (three in straight-forward fashion, one by ruffing a dia-mon, and one left over in South's hand).

MEXICO CITY (CP) President Luis Echeverria will be in Canada on an official visit after his trip to the United States during the last half of June, official sources have revealed here.

The president is going to Canada to "discuss problems common to both countries,"
Those problems are probably the U.S. influence on trade with both Mexico and Canada.

Direct trade between Canada's Atlantic Coast and Veracruz in the Gulf of Mexico would benefit Canadian ship-pers, since Mexico's maritime fleet is undeveloped.

SEEKS MARKETS

Prescident Echeverria also will be seeking markets in Canada. His administration, which took office in 1970 for which took office in 1940 lot-six years, is seeking to ex-pand markets to reduce de-pendence on the U.S. which accounts for 70 per cent of Mexico's exports and provides 60 per cent of Mexico's im-

Tourism has its drawbacks, Tourism has its drawbacks, however. The very quaintness of travel in Mexico means inefficiency in services, roads many Canadians, find too marrow, a lack of quality roadside imas and restaurants along the way to Mexico City or Acapulco and, of course, Spanish as a national language.

The department of tourism is campaigning for better service for foreign visitors and control on prices, which have helped reduce the major cause of complaints.

But the battle is one-sided. "We can't really just step in heavy-handed and demand that a small inn cleanup its sanitary facilities or take bet-ter care of the kitchen," said one tourism official. "First of

Besides the trade and tourism angles, Echeverria will

British Addict A Patient, Not Criminal

By FRED COLEMAN

LONDON (AP) — A heroin addict who mistimed his last dose walked into a London slinie, twitching.

"You look awall," a doctor said. Then he handed out a legal narcoties prescription under the tax-subsidized National Health Program.

Once again a junkle had turned up just for another-fix that could eventually kill him, rejecting the chance for free withdrawal treatment at a government hospital.

But at least there was no need for him to turn to crime to raise money for illegal drugs. And with legal narcotics available, there was less ics available, there was less profit incentive for gangaters to start mass black market to start mass black market operations here.

He was taking advantage of Britain's system of treating addicts as patients rather than as criminals.

Evidence accumulates that the system works tolerably well here, following some key sevisions.

revisions.

The number of addicts known to the government is declining. Perhaps more important, it is declining among the vouncer age groups. At its peak there were probably tewer than 4,000 addicts mong 55 million Britons

But the British addiction rate grew alarmingly over the last decade, calling the whole system into question and forcing some major changes.

In 1958, British had only 442 known addicts on hard drugs such as heroin, morphine, co caine or on methadone, a heroin substitute used in with came or on methadone, a ner-oin substitute used in with-drawal treatments. By 1968, the number had reached 2,782 and there were predictions of 10,000 by 1972.

and there were predictions of 10,000 by 1972.

The system was riddled with abuse. Rogue physicians privately over-prescribed for registered addicts, who then sold their surplus to pay the rent or buy food, sometimes hooking a new young junkle.

A new law in 1968 limited the legal prescription of narcotics to government clinics. By 1969, the number of known addicts on hard drugs had dropped to 1,466.

Part of the drop was due to a change in the method of recording addictions. The new system, in effect a census taken on the last day of the year, eliminated from that year's figures those addicts who had died, given up drugs, left the country or for any other reason had been deregistered.

TOTAL DROPS

TOTAL DEOPS

In 1970, the total dropped with the new recording system to 1,430. The 1971 figures are not out yet.

Abuses continued under the new system, often because hard-pressed doctors in National Health hospitals lacked the time or training to deal with addicts.

In the early days of the clinic system doctors were known to prescribe drugs for a new addict without even chesiding his arm for needle marks. An addict could give a urine sample to a "straight" friend, who could then quality for drug prescriptions. By and large such abuses are dwinlarge such abuses are dwin-

"They're getting craftier at the clinics," an addict says.
"In the beginning you could get a prescription just by shooting water in your veins." Conditions vary with clinics.

Some have open doors, provide coffee and sandwiches and put patients' paintings on the walls. Others lock the outside door. An addict complained, "If you go in with an overdose they throw you on a mattress and forget you. They'd be glad if you died." "Clinics have to walk a tightrope," a health department spokesman said. "If they prescribe too little, the addict looks elsewhere; too much and he is tempted to feed the black market. But the clinics keep the balance the clinics keep the balance about right."

the clinics keep the balance about right."

Some doctors are discoundaged by the low withdrawal rate. "There is nothing we can offer an addict," one bootor complained, "nothing as exciting as the bizz of heroin. "They take drugs because they like them."

Although fewer than 25 per cent of the clinics' patients opt for in-hospital withdrawal care—and many of them return later to drug use the clinics can claim some success.

cess.

The state was prescribing 3,000 grams of heroin a month in 1968. This was down to 1,358 grams in December, 1970. The number of new heroin addicts under the age of 20 dropped to 140 in 1970 from 291 in 1969, official figures indicate. The big question has always been whether the number of addicts is not higher than the total that registers with the government for legal drugs. Persons who use the black market, some experts say, could double or triple the official figure.

In setting up the clinics the

In setting up the clinics the government faced the possibility that addicts willing to get legal prescriptions from their own doctors would shy away from government clinics and look elsewhere.

CURB ILLICIT DRUGS

The Home Office, which is responsible for narcotics con-trol, denies any significant in-crease in illicit drug-taking since the clinics started. It claims this would have shown claims this would have shown up in a larger number of addicts sentenced to prison for other crkmes. Or in hospitals reporting more emergency admissions for drug overdoses. So far there is no such evidence.

Addicts themselves claim

Addicts themselves claim tighter control of drugs at government clinics has forced up the price of black mariset heroin to £6 or more today from £1 a grain in 1967.

The home office admits concern for evidence of an upsurge in illegal "Chinese heroin" imported from Hong Kong in the last year.

This is cheaper than pure heroin because it is cut with talcum powder or stomach powders. Because of the low heroin content, however, only a new addict is apt to find it satisfying.

To meet the black market, a law due to take effect later this year will sharply increase jail sentences and fines for drug pushers, while relaxing them for users.

Britain has had little success coping with problems of soft drugs such as marijuana, which is illegal here.

Standing in the Commons: Liberels, 148; Conservatives, 72; New Democrats, 25; So-cial Credit, 13; Ind. Liberal, one; Independent, two; and vacant, three.

The rejected amendment would have expressed Commons regret for what it said was government failure to relieve unemployment, to provide incentive for Canadian investment in Canadian development or to reduce personal income taxes to stimulate the economy.

WOULD NOT RISE

The Stanfield plan would link taxable income to inflation so personal income taxes would not rise unless there was a corresponding increase in real purchasing power.

The Conservative leader said this would force the government to return to Parliament for tax increases rather than relying on inflation to harvest more money for the federal treasury.

He said the current progressive income tax system boosts sidering the effect of inflation on wages.

Speaking on the fourth day of six set aside for debate on the May 8 budget of Finance Minister John Turner, Mr. Mahoney said the progressive income tax was "generally regarded as our fairest tax."

To make up for lost revenues, the government would have to turn to other taxes. The government could be

Mr. Mahoney said the government was close to the economic goals set by the Economic Council of Canada in its 1971 report. A six per cent real growth rate for three successive years to achieve full economic output and a 3.8 per cent unemployment level were suggested by the council.

Mr. Osler said the Stanfield idea would provide more for high income taxpayers than for lower taxpayers. It would work in favor of those with considerable bargaining

I May Die In One Second ...

HUE, South Vietnam (AP) — "The shelling is terrible; I will die here," a North Vietnamese soldier wrote in his diary. An artillery barrage proved him right.

The diary, which South Vietnamese officers said was found on a body just north of My Chanh, 20 miles above this threatened key northern city, read:

"... Enemy shells continue for more than four hours. There isn't a minute they don't come in. So many shells make you run from your foxhole..., like a thousand waves splashing the shore..."

Translators said the passage, written in poetic, abbreviated Vietnamese, carried a notation asking the finder to deliver it to Nguyen Dinh Que, a Hanoi civil servant; the

The soldier, who was not named, wrote that he entered the army seven months ago, leaving Hanol before the Tet (lunar new year) and crossing into South Vietnam on May 2 along the Ho Chi Min trail.

"I die for either the glory of my country or the humili-ation of my people... so that my fellow soldiers will gain victory... or so that my blood will stain the red flag in the imperial city of Hue."

The soldier told of working as a schoolteacher before going into the army.

The lines were increasingly despondent and fatalistic. At one point, he wrote:

"Of all imaginations, this is the end of them all. I may die in one second, one minute, one hour. This is perhaps my last omen that I am going to die. I could die very easily..."

And at the end, the teacher said without a change in

"It is the death on the battlefield of a soldier holding his gun to defend the life and death of his people. I die — whoever picks up this letter, please send it, and my wallet, my photographs, my letters . . . to my brother . . ."

South Vietnamese soldiers found the body, dead several days, while advancing slowly in the area last week. The soldier was killed by abell fragments.

Hanoi Attack North of Hue Beaten Back

Vietnamese forces attacked in "multi-hattalion" strength along the My Chanh River defence line north of Hue today but were beaten back with heavy losses, front dispatches reported. They also occupied part of Kontum City in the central highlands.

The Communists struck around the northern headquarters city of Da Nang. They blew the Nam O bridge on Highway 1, five miles to the north, cutting Hue off from Da Nang, and overran a firebase and three villages in the Que Son valley 20 miles south of Da Nang.

The North Vietnamese in-creased their pressure on the town of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, and once again halted a relief column with a rocket and mortar at-tack that killed the commander of an armored battalion.
U.S. advisers there said,
we're in trouble."

Another Communist success was reported in the coastal region 42 miles southeast of Saigon where Vlet Cong and North Vietnamese captured the town of Dat To three days ago and then fought off gov-ernment attempts today to recapture it.

The Communist attacks came despite U.S. and South Vietnamese air attacks and large scale raids against North Vietnam. Hanoi Radio reported more raids today and accused the Americans of hitting obtilian targets inside Hanol and the Red River dike system to the southeast in "savage acts of war."

NEW YORK (AP) — An ex-perimental automobile radar system designed to prevent rear-end or "tailgating" collisions was announced today by

The radar, mounted on the front of a car, tracks the car ahead on the highway or in heavy traffic, recording distance apart and speed.

When the separation between the cars is too small for the speed, radar flashes a light and sounds a warning buzzer for the driver.

"The radar ranks among the most promising electronic developments yet achieved in the area of highway safety." said Dr. Kerns H. Powers, director of the Communications Research Laboratory at RCA Laboratories, Princeton, N.J.

Eventually, RCA engineers said, the system's data processing circuits could be designed to feed signals to equipment that would automatically control the throttie and brakes.

The system therefore has the potential, RCA said, of preventing ears from running off highways into dangerous objects such as bridges.
RCA said the radar requires further testing but expects it could be mass produced within the wages at a cost to the versities need to start collecting stastical ammunition to fight sexual discrimination, a meeting of women faculty members at the University of Calgary was told this week.

Naomi Griffiths, committee chairman of the status of academic women for the Canadian Association of University Teachers, said individual cases of discrimination should not be made the battlefield for the whole question.

Instead, groups should collect all the data available on female job applications, female hiring and female applica-tions to graduate departments.

"It would be difficult work, and a great deal of research but this kind of global attack is extremely valuable and does bring results."

If the research shows job discrimination on the basis of t, pressure can be brought to bear on the universities from ber of angles, said Miss Griffiths, a member of Carleton University's history department.

"Federal money is not suppose to go into a discriminatory hiring and salary structure."

Miss Griffiths said statistics gathered by the committee so far indicate older universities seem to follow a pattern of being more difficult academically, for women than younger

An important part of improving female representation in academic circles is getting better female representation at the undergraduate and graduate levels, she said.

The appeal was made after the Wildwood Estates com-pany was furned down by the Nanaimo Regional District in its bid to subdivide about 250 acres of land into about 550 lots

He said he is surprised that NDP Leader Dave Barrett would suggest Campbell should break his "oath of of-fice" by falling to consider the appeal by the developer.

Campbell said that anyone appearing at the public hearing, which he will personally conduct on Gabriola Island, will be able to cross-examine any other witness.

The hearing will start at 9 m. June 24 and last as long as is required to receive all submissions

Flewin was found guilty by a jury of manslaughter in the killing of Russell Streeter, 21, outside the Colony Motor Inn on Douglas. He originally had been charged with non-capital murder.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan said the slaying was a "sense-less, vicious act" of a type "only too common in modern society. He said a stiff sen-tence was needed as a deterrent to protect society at large.

Flewin, a short, dark man with shoulder-length hair, was 20 years old when he stabbed

Streeter to death on the hotel parking lot after what police reports show was a wild, bot-tle-throwing scene in which neither of the principals was involved.

Evidence showed Streeter confronted Flewin about 1:30 a.m. outside the beer parlor

Police were called after a car was being driven at high speed in circles around the lot, and at one point a b bottle was thrown through the windshield of another auto.

While police were at scene interviewing persons in connection with the wind-shield incident, Streeter staggered to the side of the police cruiser and collapsed. Evidence was that the accused became involved in a "hassle" with Streeter after drinking in the beer parlor. Flewin had been talking with Peggy Tychkowsky, Streeter's girlfriend.

Streeter grabbed Flewin by the arm and turned him around, the accused said. Miss Tychkewsky said she heard Streeter say several times "What did you stick me with ment?"

In the fifth treaty signed in three days, the U.S. Navy secretary, John Warner, and Adm. Sergei Gorshkov, Soviet commander-in-chief, navy pledged the two countries to stop harassing practices on both sides which have threatened to grow into major confrontations.

The ceremony came after Nixon and his aides me Kremlin leaders for the seventh time in four days. They continued to work toward final agreement on a strategic arms limitation treaty — due to be signed either Friday or during the weekend - while also zeroing in on the ex-tremely sensitive issue of

The incidents-at-sea agreement was aimed at stopping a practice that has resulted in at least two minor collisions and countless close calls between American and Soviet

Terms of the pact were worked out during sessions in Moscow last October and in Washington last month. The reaffirming the super power's commitment of existing international traffic understandings — "rules of the road" — on the high seas, and an agreement to experiment with special signals between the two fleets to help them steer clear of each other.

Device Would Beat Tailgating

NEW YORK (AP) — An experimental automobile radar system designed to prevent rear-end or "tailgating" collisions was announced today by RCA.

The radar, mounted on the front of a car, tracks the car ahead on the highway or in heavy traffic, recording distance apart and speed.

When the separation between the cars is too small for the speed, radar flashes a light and sounds a warning buzzer for the driver.
